

The Center for Continuing and Professional Education (CCPE) has been an integral division of Georgetown University's School of Continuing Studies for more than 15 years. Dedicated to noncredit professional certificate programs, CCPE helps build the tangible competencies and leadership skills needed to become an effective leader and a change agent. CCPE also offers customized learning solutions for teams, departments, and organizations, including corporations, government agencies, and nonprofits.

WHY A CERTIFICATE PROGRAM?

A recent study conducted by Georgetown's Center on Education and the Workforce found that professional certificates in the United States have become more prevalent—and more valuable. Certificates currently make up 22 percent of post-secondary credentials in America, compared to just 6 percent in 1980. A 2012 study conducted by Empowered Careers, a division of the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) Extension, and Impulse Research Corp. shows that hiring managers have become increasingly more comfortable with applicants leveraging certificate programs to start, switch, or advance their careers.

In a recent survey, an overwhelming majority of hiring managers responded positively to the following statements:

Obtaining certificates is one of the best ways to keep current or upgrade your skill set.
 82% Yes
 18% No

Obtaining a certificate is a helpful step in changing careers.
 89% Yes
 11% No

Certificates are a good proxy to gain experience in a new field.
 75% Yes
 25% No
