The Rise of the Modern Spirit

The major religious and epistemological issues of today have their roots in European thought and culture from the Enlightenment to the end of the nineteenth century. Traditional forms of Christianity were repeatedly challenged by the emerging spirits of modernity. The success of the new science in explaining the natural world, together with weariness as the long strife over religious doctrine that followed the Reformation gave rise to a new spirit of Enlightenment, and a renewed confidence in the abilities of human reason. The critical study of history threatened the authority of both scripture and tradition. Skepticism about all claims to supernatural knowledge, reaching a climax in Hume and Kant, seemed to undermine the very core of religious belief. The struggle to reconcile traditional faith with these new forces produced a fascinating variety of issues and new religious ideas. The course reviews the highlights of this struggle and examines several of the significant alternatives in thinking about religion and human knowing that emerged during this period.

Books: All students should purchase the following paperbacks:

- Immanuel Kant, Religion Within the Limits of Reason Alone
- Søren Kierkegaard, Philosophical Fragments

Additional Materials (Available on Blackboard)

Requirements: All students are expected to attend class regularly, to read the assignments carefully and critically, and to come to class prepared to discuss them. Written work for the course will consist of seminar presentations, seven papers of approximately four-five pages in length, and a final paper of approximately ten pages. Grades for the course will be based upon the class presentations, the seven written assignments and the final paper, and on participation in class discussions. Students are expected to adhere to the Georgetown University Honor System in all course assignments.

Office Hours: By appointment, whenever convenient to the students

Note: Assignments may be modified as the semester progresses and the class may meet on November 25th in the event of a cancellation due to inclement weather.
